Save time and resources with valuable documentation - online copy of data provides safety

Construction projects with many stakeholders generate large amounts of data which are gathered in a Document Management Solution. Often, the client is the owner of the chosen DMS, while all other project participants and companies own the data.

Many do not think about the importance of gaining access to the DMS until they need documentation. While the owner always has access to all data, other project participants often have difficulties documenting phases and deliverables exactly as they looked like, when they no longer have access to the project's files, metadata, and history at a later time. This is a critical aspect as there is always a risk of disputes where you may lose access to the DMS and data. With RIB Vault you get a complete online copy of your company's data from RIB project, so you can always recreate documentation and ensure access to data.

The construction industry spend 13% of their time looking for data each year, while 30% of firms have been involved in at least one dispute in the previous 12 months.

Sequences
Vault sequences give you a precise snapshot of a project at a given time

Visualize
With Vault you can vsualize the project from the users perspective

Documentation
Vault gives you access to metadata, file history, log files and version sets

Comparison
Vault makes it possible for you to compare different sequences in the project

RIB Vault ensures access to data in RIB Project

With RIB Vault you get a complete online copy of your company's data from RIB project, so you can always recreate documentation and ensure access to data. When you create a Vault sequence of your project, you get a precise snapshot of all data that you and collegues have access to at the time the sequence is created.

Thus you can always recreate what a project looked like at an earlier stage of the project cycle, including all files, metadata, and history that your company's users had access to. You decide how often data should be copied and based on chosen users and their rights.

- ✓ Full documentation of data from RIB Project
- ✓ Ensure access to your company's data
- ✓ Documentation of phases and deliverables
- ✓ Optimise the review process
- ✓ Valuable in case of questions, doubts or disputes
- ✓ Recreate data from an earlier stage in the project

Contact your local RIB Software office to schedule a discovery session today.